Masonic saloonkeepers must go.

Notoriety gained at the mourners' bench would be dearly bought.

Jake Sharp got a "stay" from the courts, but he'll have a long "stay" from the warden of Sing Sing.

"One Million Dollars" is the name of a new play that may lose for its manager a part of that amount.

There will be services at most of the city churches to-day, and no one need make excuse for want of proper creed.

Governor Marmaduke has returned from his European tour, and thinks that Home Rule will soon be adopted in Ireland.

Judge Cooley, the author of many standard law books, is an ardent admirer of poetry. He could find enjoyment in many editorial waste basket.

Margaret Mather has removed from Buffalo, and she and her husband will make New York their home. Her mother and nieces have gone to Detroit.

The Empress Augusta is not a resident of an American city during the social season. She has not changed her style of dress for a quarter of a century.

Ice cream has been shelved for the season, but the oyster is on deck, at so much per dozen. The sign is just as attractive to the average belle by electric light.

The "American Secular Union" will condemn the execution of the Chicago anarchists, and advocate the abolition of all Sunday laws. A pair of "alleged twins, as it were."

It is said the Prince of Wales much resembles Abraham Lincoln in his humor. Of that the American people can not judge, as his jokes have never come across the ocean.

Jenny Lind says she "never ceases to love and cherish the American people with all her heart." She is living in a London house covered with vines and surrounded with trees and flowers.

During a recent visit of R. B. Hayes to New York city, the papers there sincerely assert that visits were not exchanged between Mr. Dana and Mr. Hayes. A kind of cooling of the sun, as it were.

Tony Faust, of St. Louis, a member of the Masonic lodge whose character was arrested on account of Dr. Hunt's anti-saloonkeeper manifesto, says he will let the fraternity alone if they do not molest him.

Memphis will welcome the presidential party beneath an arch modeled after the Arc de Triumpe of beautiful Paris. Cotton is king in the south, and the Memphis arch will be composed of two hundred bales of that article.

The Lamont Record inflicts an editorial upon its readers relative to Sedalia's streets, saying that they are in a bad condition. Rake the chips out of your own yard before going abroad to criticize. Sedalia's streets were never better than to-day.

Blanton Duncan is of the opinion that the world will come to an end in 1900. There are thousands of people in this country who, if the world really had to end then, would be perfectly willing to go up with the old machine for the sake of the free ride.

No sooner does a man in public office die than another jumps up to take his place. It is now stated that Thos. B. Connery, the present Secretary of Legation at the City of Mexico, will be appointed Minister to Mexico. Mr. Connery is a New York journalist.

The people of Chattanooga appreciated the spunky manner in which Miss Emma Abbott defended her profession against the bitter and unjust attacks of the Nashville preacher, and to show their admiration for her pluck they presented her with a handsome silver yacht.

Henry Watterson showed that he had a level head on his shoulders when he declined to be a candidate for the United States Senate. As the editor of the Courier-Journal he can accomplish more than he could on the floor of the Senate. Mr. Watterson knows that his pen is mightier than his jaw.

Within the past four months E. B. Burrows petitioned James Montgomery, superintendent of the Sedalia Gas Works, to secure for him (Burrows) a place on the BAZOO again. Mr. Montgomery approached the manager of the BAZOO on the subject and was promptly told that there was no place for him on this paper. So the boasting galoot brands himself a liar.

The editor of the Sedalia Democrat, who is a republican, was arrested a few years ago for stealing, jumped his board and later was brought back and made to free his crime. A fine cherub to write for an organ of the democratic party. How long will the democrats of Pettis county smile upon such perfidy? A pretty looking whelp to tell the democrats how to vote.

Those who say there is only one argument against prohibition, do not tell the truth unless they include all arguments in the one grand argument that it is wrong.—Springfield Herald.

There is no telling to what lengths the whisky element will go in support of their creed. One might as well include all arguments against the bible "in the one grand argument that it is wrong," as true christianity is closely associated with strict sobriety.

The terrible suspicion that some bold, bad man was trying to pass himself off as Mark Twain in England has been allayed. The London correspondent of the Tribune explains that the presence of Brete Harte as a guest at Buckingham Hall, near Norwich England, led to the report that Mark Twain was "entertaining a party of Dutch friends" at that place. It is probable that Bret Harte has been perpetrating some very ancient jokes, and somebody at once jumped at the conclusion that he must be Mark Twain.

An old printer of Cincinnati says of the Rev. Hugh O. Pentecost, late Labor candidate for Mayor of Newark: "He used to be a printer in Cincinnati and worked on the Inquirer. After that he was a compositor in Indianapolis. He was wonderfully profane, and there was another man who was about his match in that line at the Indiana capital. They started out to see who could be the most sacrilegious and the other man got away with Pentecost. He became angry, reformed and turned preacher, and is now one of Henry George's right bowlers."

The baldheaded thief and drunken vagabond, E. B. Burrows, who is the lick-spittle of the Sedalia Democrat, said yesterday that this morning he will ventilate the reputation of the manager of the BAZOO. The reputation of the manager of this paper is established as far as being imposed upon by characterless whelps like Burrows. Many men have betrayed our confidence in the past, and may possibly in the future, but Burrows can never betray the BAZOO manager again. Anything that he may publish this morning will fall to the earth, unheeded, for no one will believe a man who will steal and jump bonds.

A writer in Dress advocates the doing away with the stocking supporters, and a return to the old-fashioned garter of our mothers. The writer says that best of all is the "good, substantial silver garter of the spiral pattern make, since the silver will wear for years, and can always be kept bright and shining; and as the garter gives readily with each movement of the leg, is cool and light, and brings no steady pressure upon any sensitive part, it is a great improvement over anything else we are familiar with, and our knowledge of supports is thorough and comprehensive."

The Pittsburgh Chronicle must still believe in old heated hell. It says "when Sunset Cox was in Egypt he shook hands with Pharaoh, who died several thousand years ago. Sunset does not say what conversation passed, but we presume that he asked Pharaoh if it was hot enough for him." Sunset will be a joker wherever he may be located. Heat will never make him dry and juiceless. He says, however, he regrets having the reputation of being a humorist. He has made many a smile for the earth. His nick name might more appropriately have been "sunshine" than "sunset."

The secretary of the Masonic Home was instructed at the recent meeting of the Grand Lodge to request the press of St. Louis and of the whole state to give notice that bids for the location of the Home would be received until November 29th. Funds to the amount of $75,000 have already been secured for the building of this institution, which will be one of the largest of its kind in the United States. Sedalia should make an effort to secure its location, as her railroad facilities, one of the features required by the committee, cannot be surpassed by any city in the state outside of St. Louis and Kansas City. Get the ball started.

The curious, picturesque and yet appropriate word "Ulyseum," which is used to advertise a series of pictures delineating Gen. U. S. Grant's life, from cradle to grave, was invented by Mr. Henry Clay Lukens, a prominent newspaper man of New York and creditably known as business and editorial manager of the Journalist. Mr. Lukens is never at want for an expressive word. If the dictionary is at fault he supplies his own home made noun or adjective. He originated "Metropolis," signifying New York; also "Newspaperia," for the magic circle of his professional brethren; "festivious," in the sense of the unbounded hilarity, and various other unetymological quirks.

Emma Abbott, the opera singer who made herself conspicuous by rising in church last Sunday and rebuking a Nashville clergyman who had denounced the theatre as immoral, is receiving an ovation throughout the South. Chattanooga has honored her with a silver yacht as encouragement for her to sail in, no doubt, as she says that she is receiving congratulatory telegrams from all parts of the country. How paltry must the professional lady appear hereafter who is content to rest her claim to public recognition upon a domestic disturbance or the loss of a satchel full of jewels! There is nothing left now but for some irate actress to horsewhip a preacher for decrying the stage.

Cranks without end. The "American Secular Union" carries the blue ribbon as the premium organization of fools of the nineteenth century. It met in convention at Chicago yesterday. Among the discussions of the meeting were the separation of church and state, the suggestion that ecclesiastical property be subject to taxation; that legislative chaplains be dispensed with; that no public appropriations be given to charitable and educational institutions; the abolition of the bible in the public schools; no more judicial oaths, Sabbath laws or laws enforcing Christian morality, and that all government should be upon a secular basis. The office of the Chicago fool-killer should be well supplied with able-bodied assistants during the continuance of the convention.

The absorption of the Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph Company by the Western Union monopoly has revived the cry for a Government postal telegraph system. There is no doubt that many people would be benefited by a cheap Government telegraph system under which all deficits in the expenses of management would be paid out of the public Treasury; but the masses of the people would derive no advantage from this species of State socialism, and it would vastly increase the weight of the Government machine. It is not probable that, for the present at least, the public will feel the effects of this consolidation, since the Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph Line has been for some time practically subject to the control of the Western Union Company. Should the monopoly undertake to raise the price of telegraphic intercourse the public need not call on the government for help. Wires, telegraph poles and electric batteries are cheap; and the patents now owned by the Western Union are running out. So it probably will not be long before a new rival shall enter the field against the overgrown and top-heavy monopoly.—Philadelphia Record.

DOING TIME.

A Kansas Editor Sent to the Penitentiary for Eighteen Months.

Leavenworth, Kan., Oct. 15.—John N. Reynolds, editor of the Atchison Times, was found guilty yesterday in the United States district court, Judge Foster presiding, of using the mails for the purpose of defrauding. The case grew out of the fact that Reynolds, as president of the Atchison live stock insurance company, had sent circulars through the mails which purported to be signed by the cashier of the Farmers' bank of Atchison, representing that the insurance company had on deposit $50,000.16, and as a result succeeded in securing about $30,000, $15,000 of which he cashed. As soon as the verdict was announced Reynolds requested the judge to award sentence at once. This was that he be imprisoned in the penitentiary eighteen months and pay a fine of $200. During all this proceeding he was the coolest man in the court.

READY TO SERVE HIS TERM.

Being asked while in jail last night why he had demanded to be sentenced at once, Reynolds, who had already retired for the night, arose from his narrow bed in his cell and said: "I asked for an immediate sentence because I knew there was no appeal and I am anxious to get through with the matter. I shall go to the penitentiary, be a good prisoner, make all the good time I can, and when discharged go back to Atchison to edit my paper, which, during my absence, will be managed by Mrs. Reynolds, as well as edited." Reynolds claims that both Messrs. Tufts, and A. F. Martin, of Atchison, perjured themselves before the court, and that Tufts, who became suspicious of Bradford's assistant, boasted that he would make it hot for him even if he had to go out of his way to do it.

The Myra Clark Gaines Case.

Washington, D. C., October 15.—The hearing of arguments on the final phase of the litigation between the late Myra Clark Gaines and the City of New Orleans took place in the supreme court this week. The decision will probably settle this famous controversy forever. Up to the present moment the city of New Orleans has had the worst of the fight. The issue now pending before the Supreme Court is an appeal taken by the city from a judgment of about $2,000,000 rendered against it in 1883 by Judge Billings, of the United States Circuit Court for the eastern District of Louisiana.

This judgment was the most signal victory that Mrs. Gaines had ever won, as the Court immediately issued a mandamus compelling the city to levy a tax in order to satisfy the judgment, but an appeal was taken to the Supreme Court on both the original suit and the mandamus proceeding. That was four years ago, and yet, so far behind is the Supreme Court in its work, that these appeals have just been reached.

Mrs. Gaines died in 1885. Her death occurred on the 8th of January, which is the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans, and is set apart as the municipal day of celebration. Much comment was made upon the coincidence, and the friends of the city looked upon it as a good omen. If the decision of the lower court is reversed by the present Supreme Bench the case will probably never be heard of again. If it is sustained the city will attempt to find some other way to avoid the judgment.

Lost His Money.

Rich Hill Review, 14th.
 There's one tooth wash, the ladies pride,
 Beloved by belles o'er every "wash" bedside;
 One dentifrice there is supremely blest,
 A sweeter, better one than all the rest;
 And you will find in every land the same.
 That SOZODONT's its old, familiar name.

The Standard Tooth Wash of the age is SOZODONT. It has discolored teeth rendered white by its use. The breath derives fragrance from its aroma. It prevents and arrests dental decay. The gums become rosier and harder under its operation. All its ingredients are vegetable and antiseptic.

Perfect Sight.

As thousands can testify, there is nothing so much to be desired as perfect sight and perfect sight can only be obtained by using perfect spectacles. C. G. Taylor, our home optician, exercises great skill and patience in fitting those needing spectacles with care and comfort to the wearer. 12-114d

Attempted Train Robbery.

Houston, Tex., October 15.—Last night as passenger train 454, Engineer Converse, was pulling out of Spring Station, twenty-eight miles from Houston, on the Missouri Pacific Railway, two men jumped aboard, one getting on the end of the baggage-car and the other on the engine. As soon as the man got a footing on the engine he covered the engineer with a six-shooter and ordered him to obey orders under the penalty of death. The individual who boarded the baggage-car then made his appearance on the engine with a cocked pistol. The fireman, Geo. Lyne, jumped from the engine and caught on the rear end of the train as it was passing. The armed men fearing that the fireman had boarded the train in the rear and notified the passengers and train crew, ordered the engineer to check up. As soon as the train slackened her speed they sprang from the engine and disappeared in the woods. Before they left the engine one of them said: "It's no go."

The robbers leaped from the train about a mile and a half north of Spring Station. It is believed that the main body of the train robbers were further out on the road awaiting the coming of the train. The bold act of the fireman saved the train from robbery. Conductor Page was in charge.

A Sudden Death.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 15.—The public reception to President Cleveland this morning was marred by a sad accident. Judge H. T. Ellett, one of the most prominent citizens of Memphis, had delivered the address of welcome to the President. A few minutes before Mr. Cleveland had concluded his speech the Judge sat down overcome by the heat. Just after the President left he died, notwithstanding the skillful attentions of Dr. Bryant who is with the presidential party.

Paternal extravagance.

An over-indulgent and recklessly extravagant father was lately heard to say to his son, a tender youth of twenty-five, six feet three in height: "Now, Bub, if you'll lick in like the smart youngster you kin be when yer a min' to, an' hoe them five acres o' taters, an' hill-up that ten-acre lot o' onions, an' grub out that back lot, an' cut yer ma her winter's stove wood, an' split a thousand rails, an' weed the turnip patch, an' do a few other little chores, I'm blamed if I won't give you fifty cents to go to the circus with! Yes, I will! An' if you'll hoe down the jimson weeds in that ten-acre lot o' seed corn I'll throw in ten cents extra, that you kin lay out in lemmy-nade an' peanuts! Blamed if I don't blease in payrents lettin' their children have some enjoyment in this world."—Tribune.

—Apples and Bacon.—Use tart apples and slice them without paring. Fry thin slices of breakfast bacon; when done, but not brown, remove them to a hot dish, fry the apples in the fat, and when brown drain off the fat, and serve with the bacon.—Cincinnati Times.
